

CONTRIBUTORS

HENRIETTE SINDING AASEN (dr. juris) is a professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Bergen, Norway. She headed the University of Bergen Democracy and Rule of Law programme from 2008 to 2012, and is the leader of three interdisciplinary research projects funded by the Norwegian Research Council: Juridification and Social Citizenship in the Welfare State; Constitution, Welfare State and Social Citizenship; Health Promotion, Dignity and Human Rights: Improvement of Maternal Health in Tanzania (this project will be expanded to other African countries in 2013). All the projects have an interdisciplinary approach and address the role of socio-economic rights in democratic welfare states or in developing countries, and with a particular focus on vulnerable groups whose social citizenship and basic rights are threatened. Her latest publications address the right to health from the perspective of women, children, illegal immigrants and old persons, as well as the role of law and human rights in securing basic values of the welfare state. She provides courses for international students in human rights law, healthcare law and welfare state law, and has participated in several law commissions in the areas of health, medical research, human rights and education.

SHAHEEN SARDAR ALI BA, LLB, MA, LLM, PhD is Professor of Law at the University of Warwick in the United Kingdom, and Vice-chair of the UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention. She was formerly Professor II at the University of Oslo, Norway, Professor of Law at the University of Peshawar, Pakistan, and Director of the Women's Study Centre at the same university. She has published extensively in the areas of Islamic law and jurisprudence, international law of human rights, women's and children's rights, and gender, law and development. Her most recent selected publications include From Transnational Relations to Transnational Laws: Northern European Law at the Crossroads (2010) co-edited with A. Hellum and A. Griffiths; 'Cyberspace as emerging Muslim discursive space? Online fatawa on women and gender relations and its impact on Muslim family law norms' (2010); 'A comparative perspective of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and the principles of Islamic law: law reform and children's rights in Muslim jurisdictions' (2007) in S. Goonesekere (ed.), Protecting the World's Children: Impact of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child in Diverse Legal Systems (2007); Human Rights, Plural Legalities and Gendered Realities. Paths Are Made by Walking (2007) co-edited with A. Hellum, J. Stewart and A. Tsanga; Conceptualising Islamic Law, CEDAW and Women's Human Rights in Plural Legal Settings: A Comparative Analysis of Application of CEDAW in Bangladesh, India and Pakistan (2006); Gender and Human Rights in Islam and International Law. Equal before Allah, Unequal before Man? (2000).

CECILIA M. BAILLIET is Professor, Deputy Director of the Department of Public and International Law and Director of the Master's Programme in Public International Law at the University of Oslo. She has a doctoral degree in Law from the University of Oslo and a combined JD/MA (honours) degree from the George Washington University Law School and Elliott School of International Affairs. Her publications address the vulnerability of humanity, examining the cross-fields of international public law, human rights, women's law, refugee law and counter-terrorism. She is currently researching and teaching the right to peace. Among her publications are Security: A Multidisciplinary Normative Approach (2009) and Cosmopolitan Justice and its Discontents (2011) co-edited with Katja Franko Aas.

FAREDA BANDA is Professor of the Laws of Africa at the University of London, School of Oriental and African Studies. She holds a doctorate in Law from the University of Oxford. Her areas of interest/expertise include the human rights of women, family law, and issues pertaining to law and society in Africa. She co-edits the Journal of African Law, is an Associate Editor (Africa) of the International Survey of Family Law while also sitting on the editorial board of the International Journal of Law, Policy and the Family. She is on the international advisory boards of three other publications. Her publications include a book entitled Women, Law and Human Rights: An African Perspective. She has worked as a consultant for the United Nations OHCHR writing a report on laws that discriminate against women.

MARJOLEIN VAN DEN BRINK is a lecturer in law at the Utrecht University Law School, the Netherlands. Between 2001 and 2012 she combined this position with membership of the Dutch national equal opportunities body (Commissie gelijke behandeling). She undertakes research in the field of international law, especially human rights law, with particular reference to gender and non-discrimination perspectives.

ANDREW BYRNES is Professor of Law at the University of New South Wales and Chair of the Australian Human Rights Centre. He writes on international law (in particular human rights law), and has written on CEDAW and the human rights of women, among other topics. He was involved in the drafting of anti-discrimination legislation, has advised equality commissioners in Australia and Hong Kong, and was closely involved in the drafting of the OP-CEDAW and of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. He is a member of the advisory committee of the International Women's Rights Action Watch (Asia-Pacific), and was a member of the Asian Development Bank's External Forum on Gender and Development from 2000 to 2009. He has acted as a consultant on gender and other human rights issues to the OHCHR, the UN Division for the Advancement of Women, the ILO, UNESCAP, the Commonwealth Secretariat and other bodies. He was President of the Australian and New Zealand Society of International Law from 2009 to 2013 and external legal adviser to the Australian Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights (2012–2013). Further details at www.law.unsw.edu.au/staff/ByrnesA/Publications.asp.

SIMONE CUSACK is an Australian lawyer and works as a Senior Policy/Research Officer at the Australian Human Rights Commission. She has published and lectured widely on women's rights issues, including the CEDAW and its Optional Protocol, and is co-author (with Professor Rebecca J. Cook) of Gender Stereotyping: Transnational Legal Perspectives (2010). She is also the founding editor of the Optional Protocol to CEDAW website (<http://opcedaw.wordpress.com/>), which provides information about developments related to the Optional Protocol. Simone holds a BA/LLB (Hons) from Monash University, Australia, and an LLM from the University of Toronto, Canada.

CHOICE DAMISO is a lawyer. She was Counsel to the Zimbabwe Parliament and now works with UNFPA.

SANDRA FREDMAN is the Rhodes Professor of the Laws of the British Commonwealth and the USA at the University of Oxford, a Fellow of the British Academy and an Honorary Professor at the University of Cape Town. She is South African, a graduate of the University of the Witwatersrand and Oxford University. She was made a Queen's Counsel (honoris causa) in 2012. She has published widely in the fields of equality, labour law and human rights. Her published books include Human Rights Transformed (2008); Discrimination Law (2nd edn 2011); Women and the Law (1997); The State as Employer (1988) with Gillian Morris; and Labour Law and Industrial Relations in Great Britain (2nd edn 1992) with Bob Hepple. She has also edited two books: Age as an Equality Issue (2003) with Sarah Spencer, and Discrimination and Human Rights: The Case of Racism (2001). She was a scientific director of the EU Network of Legal Experts in the Non-Discrimination Field, and she has been an expert adviser to the proposed Single Equality Bill in Northern Ireland, the Equalities Review in the UK, the Canadian Review of Federal Labour Law, the UN Human Rights Commission working group on national action plans against racism, the UN Working Group on Women's Rights, the World Development Report 2013 and Indian gender discrimination legislation. She is a Fellow of Gray's Inn and holds an academic tenancy at Old Square Chambers.

ANDREA HAMANN holds a PhD in Public International Law from the Sorbonne Law School (University of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne), on the subject 'Adjudicating compliance in the WTO dispute settlement system'. Her research and publications focus on international dispute settlement, compliance with international law, women's human rights and the CEDAW.

ANNE HELMUM is a professor at the Department of Public and International Law at the University of Oslo. She is Director of the Institute of Women's Law, Child Law, Discrimination and Equality Law, and Director of the Faculty of Law's interdisciplinary research centre Rights, Individuals, Culture and Society (RICS). She is a guest professor at the Southern and Eastern Africa Regional Centre for Women's Law (SEARCWL) at the University of Zimbabwe. She is leader of the international research projects 'Gender, human rights and water governance: actors, norms and institutions (South Africa, Malawi, Kenya and Zimbabwe)' and 'Gender identity and sexual orientation in international and national (Norwegian) law'. Among her most recent international publications are Human Rights, Plural Legalities and Gendered Realities: Paths Are Made by Walking (2007) with Julie Stewart and Amy Tsanga; From Transnational Relations to Transnational Laws: Northern European Law at the Crossroads (2011) with Anne Griffiths and Shaheen S. Ali; and Worlds of Human Rights: Ambiguities of Rights Claiming in Africa (2013) with Bill Derman and Kristin Sandvik.

RIKKI HOLTMAAT has been a professor of International Non-Discrimination Law at Leiden Law School since 2003. She graduated cum laude in Law at Utrecht University in 1983 and worked as a member of the academic staff of the Dutch Emancipation Council from 1982 to 1985. From 1985 to 2001 she lectured on Women and Law at the University of Leiden. Her PhD thesis (1992) investigated the construction of unequal gender relations in social security law in the Netherlands. Publications concern the fields of labour law, social security law, EU equality law, the CEDAW and feminist legal theory. Besides this, she has also worked as an independent consultant and researcher in the area of gender, law and non-discrimination since 1998. Since 2005 she has been a member of the European Commission's Network of Legal Experts in the Non-Discrimination Field; since 2008 she has also been a member of the European Commission's Network of Legal Experts in the Field of Gender. She has carried out research projects for the Dutch government and for Dutch NGOs, and for several international organisations, among others UNICEF, the International Commission of Jurists, the OHCHR, ILO, OSCE/ODIHR and the European Commission.

INGUNN IKDAHL is a postdoctoral fellow at the Institute of Public and International Law, Faculty of Law, University of Oslo. She obtained her PhD in Jurisprudence in 2010 on the dissertation 'Securing women's homes. The dynamics of women's human rights at the international level and in Tanzania'. She also teaches at the Southern and Eastern Africa Regional Centre for Women's Law (SEARCWL) based in Harare. Her research on women's human rights focuses on themes at the intersection of development, livelihood, access to and management of natural resources, care work and discrimination.

LUCIE LAMARCHE is the Gordon F. Henderson Chair in Human Rights at University of Ottawa, Canada, where she also is the Research Director of the Human Rights Research and Education Centre. Lucie Lamarche is Associate Professor at the Faculty of Law and Political Science of Université du Québec à Montréal, Canada. Her fields of interest and publications mainly concern economic and social rights, women's rights, social security and social protection, and human rights institutions.

FLEUR VAN LEEUWEN, LL.M, PhD is an assistant professor at Bogazici University in Istanbul, Turkey, and owner of Havva Human Rights

Projects (havvahumanrights.com). She conducts research and publishes articles on women's human rights, reproductive rights, and the rights of lesbians, gays, bi- and transsexuals, in various languages, books and journals. In 2009 she obtained her PhD in Human Rights Law at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. In that same year she published the book Women's Rights are Human Rights – The Practice of the UN Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

MADHU MEHRA is a lawyer, a founding member and Executive Director of Partners for Law in Development, a legal resource group on women's rights in India. She undertakes action research, production of knowledge resources, training and advocacy on the CEDAW and international human rights law, and feminist legal perspectives relating to women's rights in respect of family, culture, sexuality and violence against women. She has written on the above themes and, notably, has researched and drafted the review of fifteen years of the mandate of the UN Special Rapporteur on Violence Against Women (1994–2009).

KEVÄT NOUSIAINEN, LL.D. is Professor of Comparative Law and Legal Theory at Turku University, Finland. She has carried out a number of studies and conducted various national and Nordic research projects on rights of women and discrimination, and has lately published articles on intersectional discrimination.

CELESTINE NYAMU MUSEMBI is a lawyer with interdisciplinary training in Legal Anthropology. She earned her LL.B. degree from the University of Nairobi in 1993, and her LL.M. and S.J.D. degrees from Harvard Law School in 1995 and 2000 respectively. She is currently a senior lecturer at the University of Nairobi School of Law. She previously served as Fellow of the Institute of Development Studies, Sussex (UK) for six years. She teaches and researches in the areas of human rights and development, gender and politics, citizen participation in governance, family law and property relations. She recently co-authored Ours by Right: Law, Politics and Realities of Community Property in Kenya (2013).

KABITA PANDEY, Advocate, LL.M. in Gender and Human Rights and Master in Political Science, is a public interest lawyer in Pro Public and Women for Human Rights, Single Women Group in Nepal. She has filed and represented several public interest litigations on behalf of her organizations and on her own behalf in the Supreme Court of Nepal, for the protection and promotion of women's human rights and rights of children. She is also coordinating a community mediation programme aimed to promote access to justice and societal harmony at the local level especially for women and other marginalized communities of Nepal. She worked as Task Force member of Women's Political Participation (WPP) at the Asia Pacific Forum on Women, Law and Development, Chang Mai, Thailand, 2006, and worked as an expert member of a team that prepared a model constitution from the gender perspective on behalf of Pro Public and UNIFEM and submitted it to the then Constituent Assembly.

MERJA PENTIKÄINEN, LL.D., DES, is a senior researcher in international law. Her fields of expertise cover, in particular, various human rights questions, including minority and indigenous peoples' issues, women and human rights, violence against women, discrimination, racism and other forms of intolerance, human rights aspects of international migration and integration within society, international and national security and human rights, and human rights aspects of responsible business and sustainable development. She has published numerous monographs and articles on these questions.

HÉLÈNE RUIZ FABRI has degrees in Law and Political Science, and a Doctorate from the University of Bordeaux. She is currently Dean of the Sorbonne Law School (University of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne), Director of the Joint Institute of Comparative Law of Paris (UMR de droit comparé – Paris I/CNRS) and Director of the Master 2 Degree Programme in International Economic Law. She teaches and researches International Law, WTO Law and International Dispute Settlement. She has published extensively in the fields of WTO Law and Dispute Settlement, and also in Constitutional Law. She taught at the Academy of European Law (Florence) and at the Academy of International Law (The Hague). She also has experience at the Council of Europe (as a legal consultant on the ratification and the implementation of the European Convention on Human Rights in East European countries), at the French administration and at the Organisation internationale de la Francophonie (as a legal consultant on cultural diversity).

JULIE STEWART is Professor of Law and Director of the Southern and Eastern Africa Regional Centre for Women's Law (SEARCWL), University of Zimbabwe. SEARCWL runs a regional Masters Programme in Women's Law. She has published extensively in the fields of women and law, and on the intersections between state laws, customary laws and human rights in Southern Africa. In 2011 SEARCWL published Women and Law: Innovative Approaches to Research and Analysis, which is a documentation and discussion of the evolution of the courses on the Masters in Women's Law Programme.

