Chapter 1

“Well then Humphrey everything ready, have you got my fishing rod and net, have you remembered my worms and is the boat at the jetty”? “Yes sir” said Humphrey, “I’ve left the worms by the jetty I’ll pick them up on the way down.”

Sir William was very excited his favourite thing to do was fishing early in the morning when teapot castle was very quite and Lady Lucy and Princess Lulu were still fast asleep. Sir William finished his peppermint tea and they were ready to go. Sir William moved the painting and opened the secret door and followed the passageway that led down to the secret jetty under Teapot Castle, where the Good Ship Lemon Tea was waiting.

Chapter 2

“All aboard” said Sir William, Humphrey put the the fishing rod and net into the boat and went to pick up the bucket of worms he’d left on the jetty earlier.

“Ship ahoy cast off Humphrey let's see what we can catch today,” said Sir William. Sir William steered the boat through the whirlpools and out through the opening. The rock rolled back at the same time every morning just as the sun was rising and let them sail through the opening behind the waterfall into Rose Tea Lake. The tea trout were the best in the world and only to be found in Rose Tea Lake, they were Lady Lucy’s favourite for breakfast.

It wasn't long before Sir William had caught his first tea trout. “Sit down Humphrey your rocking the boat” shouted Sir William” “Your making me jiggle”, Humphrey had lent over the side of the boat to help land Sir William’s tea trout, Humphrey jumped when Sir William shouted and kicked the flask of lushberry tea over the side of the boat into the rose colour water, Humphrey grabbed for the flask and caught it just in time in the fishing net just as Sir William's tea trout jumped in. Humphrey pulled the net aboard and tipped his catch onto the deck of the ship. “Cup of tea Sir “asked Humphrey, “Certainly my man, good catch only another two fish to get before we make our way back to the castle for breakfast.”

Humphrey poured the lushberry tea into the magic silver teacup for Sir William and passed it to him with an orange tea biscuit; “Hear we are Sir be careful you don’t spill any, remember that once the tea has been poured into the magic teacup it has special magical powers, and let's you have your wish for the day.”

Lushberries can only be found in teapot castle orchard and only Lady Lucy knows where to find them, when mixed with the water from Rose Tea Lake and Lady Lucy's special tea leaves, can a wish come true.

Chapter 3

Sir William sipped his tea and thought, and thought, “What can my wish be today.” “I know Humphrey,” Sir William jumped up and said “I’d like one of Blueberry Tea's muffins, once I take a bite it lets me fly over teapot land and see what everyone else is up to; I could have it when I have my morning tea with Lady Lucy and Princess Lulu. We all could go and then we would be back in time for lunch." That decided Sir William drank his tea and ate his orange tea biscuit, the wish was made;

Humphrey put another worm on Sir Williams's fishing rod and cast it into the lake to catch the rest of the tea trout for breakfast and after catching enough fish for breakfast, Humphrey packed all the equipment away, ready to set sail back to teapot castle. "Up anchor" shouted Sir William, as he started to steer the good ship lemon tea back through the whirl pools and in to the secret cave under the castle. The good ship lemon tea tipped, tilted, ducked and dived through the water round the waterfall. They just made it into the cave entrance before the rock fell back into place keeping the entrance a secret for another day.

Once back at the jetty, Humphrey jumped out of the Good Ship Lemon Tea. "Anything else Sir or should I just take the fish to kitchen to be cooked in time for breakfast." "Lady Lucy and Princess Lulu will be getting up for breakfast by now." "Yes off you go Humphrey, I'll finish off here and I'll meet you in the dinning room." Humphrey hurried away while Sir William secured the Good Ship Lemon tea to the jetty. Once done Sir William hurried back to his room, to change into his favourite orange and green suit for breakfast. Sir William looked in the mirror as he was about to leave and then remembered to put on his hat that matched his trousers perfectly. "You're looking very dapper this morning" said Lady Lucy to Sir William as he entered the dinning room; "you look lovely too my dear and has the tea arrived yet?" replied Sir William. "Oh and what about the tea trout." Sir William asked.

Chapter 4

"Oh William" said Lady Lucy. "You know I don't like you going fishing on your own." "I didn't, Humphrey was with me." "Why did you want to come?" "Certainly not my sweet pea, I've been doing my yoga moves and meditation in the garden, but it was a lovely idea to get me a tea trout for breakfast." "How many did you catch?" "Four, one each for us and I thought, one for Marmaduke because he's not been looking well lately." "That's because he keeps pinching my Lushberries from the garden." "You know your not suppose to eat too many or you turn purple with yellow spots and giggle all day." "Oh I thought he was looking very strange yesterday" said Sir William. "Well I put him in the summer house at the back of the orchards for the afternoon as he was upsetting Princess Lulu". "Well enough of that let's have breakfast." "Where's Humphrey with my trout" said Lady Lucy. Sir William rang the bell for Humphrey to bring the breakfast and called for Princess Lulu to have breakfast with them.
